

National Action Plan for Child Well-Being 2016-2021

Goals. Objectives. Actions.

SURVIVAL DEVELOPMENT PROTECTION PARTICIPATION IMPLEMENTATION

Uganda is one of the youngest countries in the world with 19 percent of the population under 5 and 49 percent under 15 years of age. Facts show that of the people living in poverty in Uganda, 62 percent are children. One in 19 children dies before his or her first birthday and 33 percent of children under the age of 5 are stunted. Despite Universal Primary Education, only 37 percent of children make it to secondary school. Moreover, 20 percent of females, and 13 percent of males, over the age of 6 have never had any formal education. There is a 70 percent drop out rate in primary schools, and the main causes for girls dropping out of primary school are marriage and pregnancy.

Over the past 20 years, Uganda has introduced policies, reforms, and sector-specific strategies and initiatives intended to facilitate the transition from poverty and vulnerability to prosperity and security. These reforms led to significant achievements in poverty reduction under the Millennium Development Goals, but only limited gains in reducing child mortality, improving access to HIV treatment and preventing malaria. Malnutrition and stunting; children's literacy and advancement to secondary school; and protection of children against abuse, exploitation and violence are areas that still need careful attention.

Uganda's overarching goal is to become a modern and prosperous country by the middle of the century, as reflected in the Vision 2040. However, Uganda cannot reach this vision or realize the potential rewards of its human capital without investing in critical areas of child development, health, education, and child protection. The legal and policy reforms in place constitute the legal basis for implementation of the National Action Plan for Child Well-Being.

No entity alone can fulfill the needs and safeguard the rights of children by working in isolation. The National Action Plan aims to engage stakeholders to contribute to key priorities for the survival, protection, development and participation of children in Uganda—all as part of one coherent framework. A holistic and coordinated effort will create a social safety net for children in which all individuals, families, communities, government and leadership have a role to play. Government, local communities, international organizations, and non-governmental organizations must collaborate and complement each other's strengths and expertise. The goals, objectives, priority actions and national targets of the action plan will serve as a guide to achieving common goals and measuring progress through national targets.

Together, we can reach these critical goals, if we act now and with renewed resolve. Commitment to achieve the national targets will lead to greater investment in basic social services and enhanced public-private partnerships to scale up strategies, and provide a healthy, safe and protective environment for Uganda's children. The National Action Plan for Child Well-Being gives clear direction for our collective efforts to build a Uganda in which all children can survive, grow and develop to their full potential, protected from the many threats that jeopardize their future.

IMPLEMENTATION

Our Commitment

In Uganda, children's issues must be a top priority for all program processes, donor and private sector investment plans, and current and future legislative and policy reforms. The National Action Plan for Child Well-Being provides a foundation for implementation of policies and strategies that address issues to ensure a better future for Uganda and Uganda's children. Uganda cannot reach Vision 2040 or realize the potential rewards of its human capital without investing in critical areas of child development.

It will take a cadre of committed individuals and organizations—from the highest levels of government to households and families—to implement solutions that will make a difference in the lives of children. Clearly established roles and responsibilities must be defined and followed such that efforts can be coordinated, implemented and measured to ensure success.

This is a movement for children. We must declare our commitments to this effort, bring the Action Plan to all the regions, districts, sub-counties, parishes, communities and homes throughout Uganda, and become Champions for Children. Every child must have a voice to secure her/his rights. Each parent, every family and all communities must take part and share the responsibility to care for Uganda's children. Government, civil society, religious and traditional leaders together with the private sector must lead the way to safeguard the well-being of children. This is only the beginning.
